We're everybody's

We all have mental health, like we all have physical health. Both change throughout our lives. And, like our bodies, our minds can become unwell.

What do we mean by 'mental health'?

- We all have mental health as well as physical health. They are linked together and we need to look after both
- Mental health is about how we: think and feel about ourselves and others and how we interpret events.
- Our mental health influences how we cope, our relationships with others and our self-esteem

About a quarter of the population will experience some kind of mental health problem in the course of a year, with mixed anxiety and depression the most common mental disorder in Britain

Our mental health is like the weather changeable

- It depends on how we are thinking and feeling about what is happening in our lives
- There are lots of things that can influence our emotional or mental health
- and sometimes for the worst

Worth remembering

- Everyone feels down and stressed sometimes. it's a normal part of life
- Stressful thoughts and feelings and events come and go
- We all need ways of looking after ourselves and getting support
- For some of us, we may feel down or anxious for longer and it starts to affect our day-to-day life
- Then we may need extra things to help

TIP: It's scientifically proven that noticing the good stuff keeps us well

Being well and staying well and help others to do the same .

In pairs: what makes you feel good and helps you cope with life's stressors?

Five Ways to Wellbeing

Anxiety is one of the most prevalent mental health problems in the UK and elsewhere, yet it is still under-reported, under-diagnosed and under-treated

It is estimated that 70 million working days a year are lost to mental ill-health. Half of all days lost through mental ill-health are due to anxiety and stress conditions

The Sainsbury Centre for Mental Health

Early warning signs of stress can include:

- Increase in unexplained absences or sick leave
- Poor performance
- Poor time-keeping
- Withdrawal from social contact
- Unusual displays of emotion e.g. frequent irritability or tearfulness.
- Constant tiredness or low energy

What might be signs that a person needs extra support?

- Extremes: e.g. person is more anxious or low than is usual for them, in the context of what is going on in their life.
 Duration: e.g. their anxiety or low mood is becoming more frequent, it's not just going away.
- Impact on day-to-day life: e.g. noticeable negative impact on aspects of day-to-day living
 Risk: e.g. that things will get worse; that they can't maintain their usual responsibilities etc

'You don't know how to be a... up to the top of the mountain.

W Talk, but listening too simply being there will mean a lot.

Keep in touch: meet in person, phone, email or text

Don't just focus on mental health: chat about everyday things as well

Q Remember that you are not alone. All things can make a big difference.

Be patient: ups and downs can happen.

Recovery

- With the right help and support, people can and do recover from even the most severe mental ill-health.

Recovery is about much more than the absence of symptoms

- Recovery is about living a meaningful and satisfying life in the presence or absence of symptoms of mental ill-health
- A belief that a more meaningful and satisfying life is possible and attainable is central to recovery
- Stigma, pessimistic attitudes and undervaluing the contributions that people with mental ill-health make can be barriers to recovery
