Information regarding Bristol's wall

“ Bristol's first and only legal wall to be sanctioned by the city council (it was arranged in 2007.) Located in a public park in an inner city neighborhood. flat concrete, over 100 feet long and 8 feet high.” User Comment “Alot of talented artists get up on this wall regularly, to a traveller like me it looks like it is all sanctioned by the council or heavily controlled by the locals, as none of the pieces seem to run over each other. Alot of human traffic, but they didn't seem to mind, spent a few hours painting a blank section without crossing anyone's work. Respecting the locals seems to be key at this spot.”

Information regarding Aberdeen's Wall

“Funded by Aberdeen City Council and installed in March 2009, the wall was launched in May 2009 with support from Whitespace and local artists. Since then the wall has served as a legal space for aerosol graffiti art with many local artists regularly “getting up” at Transition. Running alongside the building itself the wall is in a perfect, sheltered spot to practice techniques and get creative without worrying about the law.”
