Tidworth Youth Rocks to a Prehistory beat

6. Project summary:

We plan an exciting art dance drama project for at least 25 young people from military and community backgrounds. Inspired by fascinating artefacts from the age of the Mammoth theyll work with professional festival artists Beautiful Creatures to create show-stopping costumes and choreography at four workshops in May/June for the summer Tidworth festival. A mammoth might even appear. Potential partners include T2A Stage 65 local schools and Gurkha families. The Museum will provide from other funding pre-historic themed free family activities at the festival and will share the story of when mammoths roamed near Tidworth. This element will be repeated for Family Learning Festival.

Why can't you fund this project from your reserves:

We are a small independent museum which receives little public funding. We have to constantly fund raise in order to provide a museum service for the local area. Our education officer is part time and working at capacity. We have surplus funds from a trust who kindly funded the development of our new pre-history environment gallery which we can use to partly match fund this. Our reserves act as an endowment supporting our core activity. Our Reserves are used as an Endowment with the income supporting our work and reducing our annual deficit of 80000.

We are a small community group and do not have annual accounts or it is our first year:

13. Please tell us WHO will benefit and HOW they will benefit from your project benefit your local community?

How does your project support local needs and priorities - We aim to encourage integration between young people from military and civilian communities especially with the return of German-based troops. We want to inspire young people to look up from the ordinary and enjoy taking part in the colourful imaginative world of the arts and also to learn about Tidworth's spirit of place. Adult workers involved in this project have seen first-hand how helping to shape and perform in an arts project can increase a young person's sense of self-worth. Projects like this can also help determine future careers and to development friendship groups. How have young people been involved in your project so far We have had three days to pull this bid together for this deadline. So far Joyce Stretton from T2A has only been able to talk with a handful of young people but those talked to seemed very keen. We will be involving young people in helping to shape the project from the start - the director of Beautiful Creatures is a former head of drama at Reading College who has expertise in involving young people in the creative process - she is adamant she wants them to shape the project and take ownership of it. Stage 65 are a drama group starting up in Tidworth after being based in Wellington Academy - their teenage members will bring skills with them. How many young people do you expect to benefit - At least 25 in the performance element with capacity to include others in the costume development. How will your project be accessible and affordable - There will be no costs to either the young people taking part in the festival element or for the families in the drop in make and take elements. How will you encourage volunteering and community involvement - We hope that some of the young people involved will help us with the festival make-and-take elements perhaps assisting families with the making activities or discussing the costumes they made or helping with the handling artefacts. They will be pop-up volunteers for the day gaining valuable engagement skills. This project works with a variety of community groups - young people Gurkha families home taught young people and shares the story and success with the wider community at the festival where they will perform in their costumes. How will you ensure your project is accessible to everyone - Disabled low incomes vulnerable etc. Our venues will be accessible to people with disabilities and are in central Tidworth locations. We will be providing all the materials and events for free including refreshments. Safeguarding is a central consideration. Young people of all backgrounds can participate and we will ensure that we provide a welcoming environment. How will you work with other community partners - For the Tidworth festival in July we will be working with the Town Council. We will work with T2A Stage 65 local schools and any other organisation that believes that some of their young people would enjoy and benefit from being one of the 25 participants. There may even be room for more young people in the creative making element of the project.

Wiltshire Museum has a track record of working well in partnership firmly believing that working can achieve so much more for our communities.

14. How will you monitor this?

We will talk to the young people before the project and gauge their interest and confidence in projects featuring DT and Art drama and dance and their knowledge of Tidworth in Pre-history. Feedback will be recorded. During the day we will monitor success using observation and we will use creative methods to capture feedback about the workshop and about their sense of achievement. We will talk with adult group leaders and the Beautiful Creatures team after each element to help shape both the project in hand and our future outreach work.

15. If your project will continue after the Wiltshire Council funding runs out, how will you continue to fund it?

n/a

16. Is there anything else you think we should know about the project?

no
