Dear Sir,

Refusal of a street trading consent i.n.o. Priyantha Balasooriya

Please accept this as written notification of my intention to appeal the above decision and the retention of fees associated with the application. Although it is a fairly well known fact that an e-mail constitutes a written notification, I will also be sending a copy of this, by Royal Mail.

I reserve my right to take legal advice on this matter.

I am sure you have specific procedures you would like me to use and therefore, I await the necessary forms being sent to me.

Yours,

Refusal of street trading

Hi Priyantha, the form that the council has sent is not interactive, so I can't fill it out for you, but I will tell you what to put on there.

Firstly, fill in all your personal details that they ask for, then, in the box that asks for reasons for the appeal, type the following:-

1. The trading hours which I applied for, were based on advice given to me, by your own advisor and I believe they have not been viewed as they were intended. If I am advised by a member of your staff, I do not expect to have my application rejected, outright.

2. You give, as a second reason, the fact that someone is already trading in the same goods. We have a monopolies commission in this country and competition is welcomed as a means to achieve better value for customers. You cannot operate your own exclusions in this regard.

3. I object that you have retained fees, even though it was your own advisor who assisted me in the application. Incompetence on your behalf is no excuse to retain these fees.

4. I object strongly, that although your reasons seem cut and dried (to you), the application was allowed to stand for the full duration allowed by yourselves before being addressed, thereby preventing me from exploring the reasons for refusal AND being able to use monies that should have been returned, in alternative pursuits.

best regards !

Priyantha balasooriya

Dear Mr Balasooriya

STREET TRADING CONSENT – APPEAL PROCESS

The Council's Guidelines for Street Trading consents set out the right for a trader to appeal to the Licensing sub- committee where an officer has decided to:

- Refuse an application
- Introduce additional conditions or
- Revoke a Street Trading consent.

The section of the guidelines, Appeal to the Licensing Sub-Committee, which explains the process is attached. The full guidelines are available online at www.wiltshire.gov.uk, in the A-Z, go to Licensing and click on the link for Street Trading Consent; or on request from this office.

Your appeal should be set out in writing on the form overleaf. Please complete and return the form and any attachments to:
