PROGRESS ON THE INTEGRATION OF CHILDREN'S SERVICES IN WILTSHIRE

Purpose of Report

1. The purpose of the report is 'to provide a progress update on the development of integrated children's services in Wiltshire, in particular the co-location of teams and process sharing, and to include a summary of how the Children Act 2004 is being implemented, together with a brief description of the role, function and composition of the Interim Trust Board and the main priorities of the Children & Young People Plan', as requested in the Work Plan of November 2005.

Background

2. The Department for Education and Skills regularly identifies the 'Change for Children' programme as being like an 'onion' with outcomes for children & young people at its heart, and uses the diagram below to demonstrate this:

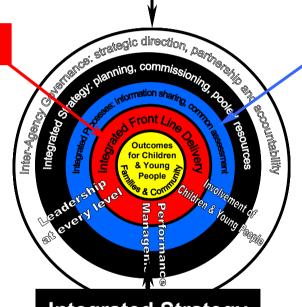

In turn, we have broken this down to demonstrate the constituent parts of the 'onion' and what is required to achieve each of them, as follows:

Inter-agency Governance

- Director of Children's Services
- Lead Member
- Children & Young People's Trust Board
- Local Safeguarding Children Board.

Integrated Front-Line Delivery

- Children's Centres
- Extended Schools
- Integrated Youth Offer
- Common Core of Skills
- Support for parents, carers and families
- Support for children with additional needs
- Integrated Safeguarding
- Multi-disciplinary Teams.

Common Accessment

Integrated Processes

- Common Assessment Framework
- Shared referral
- Identifying vulnerable children & young people
- Lead Professional
- Information Sharing
- Service Directory.

Integrated Strategy

- Needs Analysis
- Children and Young People's Plan
- Local workforce planning
- Joint Commissioning
- Pooled Budgets.

Main Considerations for the Council

3. In the table below, each element from the diagram above has been identified and progress on it reported. This has drawn on the analysis undertaken with the DfES Regional Change Adviser, who is responsible for monitoring progress in all Councils

|   | What are we doing about?           | What have we done to date?   | What still needs to be done?   | How are we doing in comparison with other councils?  | How near to completion are we?   |
|---|------------------------------------|--|--|--|--|
|   | INTEGRATED FRONT-LINE DELIVERY |  |  |  |  |
| A | Children's Centres                 | During autumn 2005, extensive consultation has taken place to identify the location of the 20 centres that Wiltshire is required to establish by 2008. This has been completed, and the plans are now well advanced.   | The programme now needs to be implemented. Staff to lead it are in place and know what has to be done. However, resources are limited, especially for capital works, and there is much to be done to ensure effective roll-out and sustainability.   | Most Councils are ahead of Wiltshire, because they have had funding previously (based on indices of deprivation) and therefore have some centres already in place. However, progress in consulting on the new centres here has been swift and effective. | Green – in the sense of knowing what has to be done and being in place to achieve it.  Amber – in the sense of having much still to do to provide centres. |
| В | Extended Schools                   | Two full-service extended schools and eight community leadership projects were launched in September 2005. These are now making progress in establishing programmes etc, and include health and social care, sports development, access to ICT and family outreach work. | In due course, all schools are expected to develop a range of "extended" services reflecting the needs of their local communities. Plans are in place to provide more extended services through the next tranche of Standards Funds. These will continue to be developed in conjunction with community planners and in relation to areas of deprivation. | As with Children's Centres, Wiltshire did not receive pilot funding, and is therefore behind those authorities that did, but in line with others.  | Green – in the sense of knowing what has to be done and being in place to achieve it.  Amber – in the sense of having much still to do to provide more     |

| С | to integrate the support of Connexions and the Youth Development and Youth Offending Services. | Strategic meetings of key managers to determine way(s) forward. Connexions service becoming a Council service from April 2006, which will facilitate future developments.  | Significant work to develop the shape of the integrated Youth Service and plan for implementation from April 2007 or April 2008. The effective deployment of resources will be an issue.  | Pilot Councils are ahead,but otherwise all Councilsare at early stages ofdevelopment.   | Amber – the task is identified, but much has yet to be done.   |  |
|---|--|--|---|---|--|--|
| D | Common core of skills  | Some dissemination of DfES consultation documents on children's workforce and common core skills. Considerable progress in developing NVQ at levels 2 and 3. Participation in "Championing Children" project has supported the identification of specific management skills and competencies for inter agency working. | More detailed mapping of skills and competencies against the local workforce plan (see section S).  Further development and rationalisation of the current NVQ assessment centres, the development of a departmental assessment centre and of higher level NVQs related to children's social care and specific training and development for foster carers and early years.  Work with corporate HR team and external partners to develop generic model of management skills and competencies for inter agency working | Wiltshire is ahead in some areas of NVQ development and the development of management competencies for inter agency working but is probably behind in terms of overall workforce planning. There is a need to build on the impetus of the Championing Children project, and current developments in Wootton Bassett and Trowbridge, as well as the rapid extension of children's centres, to promote the notion of core competencies more widely throughout the county. | Amber – in the sense that we have moved ahead in some areas, but have not yet consolidated the overall approach. |  |

| E | Support for parents, carers and families   | A range of types of helpfor parent and carers isavailable (and identifiedwithin the Pathwaysservice directory). Continuing work to provide a coherent approach to parenting programmes in the context of wider support for parents and parenting.  Development of role of Family Support teams and Crisis                             |  |                                   |

| F | Support for children with additional needs | A draft guide for identifying children & young people who need additional help has been produced (see below). A range of types of help for children & young people is available (and identified within the Pathways service directory). | Support for disabled children & young people is being developed as part of implementation of "New Pathways for disabled children".  Developing responses to children & young people with emotional & behavioural problems is a priority of the Trust Board. | In advance of other authorities in some areas and behind in others. Wiltshire is especially behind in relation to the delegation of funding for Special Educational Needs. | Amber – continuing work required. |

It will be some time before lead professionals are widely in place.   | Few Councils have made extensive progress in developing lead professionals yet. | Amber – we know where we are going, how and when, but this is in the early stages of development. |

Environmental Impact on the Proposal

4. There are environmental implications arising from the changes, but they are difficult to quantify. For example, the location of teams around the county will impact on travel arrangements and costs. The construction of new offices, for example through the LIFT project, will improve space utilisation and reduce the running costs of offices. The establishment of Children's Centres will have both positive and negative effects on travel patterns – because they will be closer to communities, there should be a reduction in the travel that parents undertake, but because parents will have the choice of where to take their children, they could increase their journeys and/or journey times.

Risk Assessment

- 5. There are significant risks associated with many aspects of the developments outlined above. The chief among them may be summarised as:
  - Risks to individual children and young people safeguarding the wellbeing and welfare of children and young people lies at the heart of the Department's responsibilities. The changes outlined above are intended to improve the situation in these respects. However, the possibilities of accidental harm to children and young people cannot be ruled out, and it is arguable that the risk is increased during the period of change.
  - Partnership working many of the developments are dependent on effective partnership working with other agencies. Currently, a number of these – the Police, the Primary Care Trusts and the Learning and Skills Council – are undergoing major structural changes as well as budget restrictions. This may well impact on the timing and effectiveness of developments.
  - Government policy changes to policy direction and priorities from the current or future government(s) are likely to have significant impact. Simultaneously, conflicting government policies can influence events and directions: for example, the White Paper of November 2005 proposed greater autonomy for schools while simultaneously seeking that Local Authorities should champion the needs of children and young people.
  - Staff expertise and training there will be a need for staff to develop new skills to enable them to work across a broader agenda of children's services. For example, at present few staff have experience of or qualifications in the commissioning of services. The availability of effective training programmes, together with the availability of staff to attend them, will be imperative.
  - Governance issues the current arrangements regarding the governance of the Children's Trust Board and the responsibilities of the County Council to 'secure Children's Trust Arrangements' are leading to some confusion and lack of accountability between different bodies.
  - Inspection demands and outcomes the Council will be subject to annual performance measurement and, every three years, to a Joint Area Review. Failure to meet standards will lead to loss of reputation and, potentially, intervention from regional or national bodies.

Financial Implications

- 6. There are significant financial implications resulting from a change programme of this magnitude. There is an assumption at government level that the eventual outcome will be at worst cost neutral and at best will lead to savings. The immediate pressure points are as follows:
  - Rationalisation of property needs bringing teams of professional together in collocated offices provides the opportunity to improve liaison between them and to reduce the total accommodation needed. However, there are costs incurred in the feasibility studies, building improvements needed etc.
    The most obvious example of this is the LIFT project with Primary Care Trusts which, in the first instance, is intended to rationalise property needs in Salisbury. A number of Cabinet reports have been submitted on this subject to ensure that the Council's eventual outgoings do not exceed current costs.
  - Staff training and development costs are incurred in the provision of training and in covering for staff attending such training.
  - Information and Communication Technology infrastructure many of the proposed developments, especially around shared processes, are heavily dependent on improved ICT at a range of levels. To date, provision has been made within the budget for the Corporate Change Programme to meet these needs, but continued resourcing is not yet secure.
